Chattanooga, Tennessee- The Chattanooga Zoo is pleased to offer a brand new and unique educational program, Kits and Cubs. Kits and Cubs is an early childhood learning program that is designed specifically for the youngest of animal lovers!

Children, ages 2 to 5 years old, will learn about animals all over the world through hands on, interactive learning. Each Kits and Cubs program is uniquely themed, from exploring Treetop Dwellers to going on a Sensory Safari, and encourages your child to explore the natural world and make connections with new animal friends. Each program includes activities, crafts, story time, and animal encounters which offers participants a chance to get up close and personal with some of the Zoo’s animal ambassadors.

“Implementing and offering this new early childhood educational program aligns directly with our zoo mission to educate our community, even the smallest of students. We are excited to watch these tiny beginners learn, grow, and share connections with wildlife,” states Dardenelle Long, Chattanooga Zoo President and CEO.

The Chattanooga Zoo is offering this program for the very first time in two sessions: Spring (January – March) and Fall (August – October). The first program will be held on January 4th. All programs are held on Wednesdays starting at 10:30am and run approximately one hour.

Registration for the Spring 2017 session is now open! Register for the entire session series at $80 for Zoo Members, $90 for non-members, and $30 per additional child, or for individual dates at $15 for Zoo Members, $18 for non-members, and $5 per additional child. Registration costs include participation of one child and one adult.
